

IN NATIONAL ELECTION, CHALLENGING BEFORE ELECTORAL SYSTEM IN INDIA: IN GENERAL ELECTIONS

¹Dr. MAHESH N PATEL

¹Assistant Professor, Shri S.M.Shah Law College, Mehsana

ABSTRACT

The fact that the General Elections for Parliament and States Assemblies are approaching, this paper discusses the importance of voting and EVM machines. As we will see that the use of these machines is so simple and effective, they definitely have the potential to make the coming General Elections the most fair and successful in the history of Democracy of the nation. The malpractices that are rigging our present election system will be removed and most of all the percentage of voting may touch the unbelievably high level which is the real mark of any democracy. This paper tests the effectiveness of electronic voting against the eight essential requirements that any electoral process need to satisfy to make them both free and fair in modern society.
